Are Separate Schools Equal?

Separate schools are not equal. Separate schools are not equal because separate schools don't get the same amount of money. Separate schools don't get the same activities. Separate schools don't get the highest quality teachers. Every school should get the same amount of money because it is really unfair if one school gets more money than another school. Every school should have the same activities because if someone wanted to play basketball and the school didn't have basketball and another school did that wouldn't be fair. Every school should have the same quality teachers or else other people would not have the best education.

Separate schools don't get the same amount of money because the district doesn't have enough money to give all of the schools as much money as they all need. If we didn't have separate schools we could have one great school that could have everything that money can buy for a school with good education. Also if we had more money in schools they could sell healthier food. That's why separate schools don't get a lot of money.

Separate schools don't get the same activities. They don't get the same activities because some of the schools don't have enough money to get good activities. Some schools don't have enough students to get a lot of activities. Separate schools don't have the same activities because they need to have enough students that want to do it. That is why separate schools don't have the same activities.

Separate schools don't get as high of quality teachers. They don't have as high of quality teachers because they don't have enough money to pay for them. The schools that are in poor neighborhoods don't get the good teachers because they don't have the money they need to pay for them and all of the good teachers are already in higher quality schools. Higher quality teachers might think that a poorer school isn't a good enough school for them to teach at. That is why I think separate schools don't have as high of quality teachers.

Separate schools don't get the same amount of money. Separate schools don't get the same activities. Separate schools don't get the same quality teachers. I think that students should be able to go to any school they want to. That is why I think that separate schools aren't equal. I hope that all the separate schools have an equal amount of money, an equal amount of activities, and an equal amount of good quality teachers.
