Every Student deserves...

Every student is equal as a human being. There are some characteristics separate people into groups, but this can't be a reason to hate a race. In school there are very different students from different countries and different societies. Every student deserves the same opportunity to learn the chance to be a part of school society and respect from others.

Every student deserves the equal chance to learn. There should not be any difference between students. Also teachers should not treat students separately. I read a story from an old book. In the book, there was a black boy and a white girl. The white girl was not very smart, but the black boy was very smart. However, the teacher liked the girl more than the boy because she was white and her father donated a lot of money to the school. The school also treated white students better; therefore the white students had more opportunities to learn, which was not fair. Students go to school to learn, not to be segregated and treated differently.

Every student needs to get an equal chance to be a part of school society. There should not be any discrimination among presidential candidates. Most school presidents or student council members are Caucasians even though they are not well prepared. There were very few other races in student council. Mostly the activities are lead by Caucasians and other people are helpers. Many immigrants are very passive to every activity. One very big reason why many immigrants don't participate in activities is that usually they don't want to be involved at school activities or society because they do not feel accepted and they are not familiar with the American school system. Every student should feel they are part of society and they need to participate in it.
Students must feel comfortable to talk about their culture and other people should respect them. There are some people who laugh at other's cultures, accents, or features. My friend uses her own cultural name in USA. One day, a substitute teacher pronounced her name very strangely. So the other students laughed at her name and joked about her. My friend was very ashamed, so she changed her name and transferred schools. I was so sad, and very melancholic about her. She was Chinese and her name was very pretty in Chinese society. Some of my friends told me that they feel pride about their name, but sometimes they are very embarrassed when people laugh at their names and pronounce them very oddly. Laughing at someone's name is the same as laughing at person's culture because his or her name represents that culture. Thus, we can't laugh at them because that is the only way they know how to speak. We should accept every culture as it is.

Every student must deserve respect from others in order to end discrimination among people. And every student must have the same opportunity to learn and be a part of society.
